

Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 30 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain or showers. Breezy.

Today:
Rain will clear eastwards during this morning, but lingering over Shetland for the afternoon. Showers then following, these heavy and frequent at times in the west, the driest and brightest conditions developing in the east. Breezy, strong coastal winds.

Tonight:
The showers dying out for a time this evening, but becoming widespread and heavy at times overnight. The chance of hail and the odd rumble of thunder.

Friday:
A rather showery day, the showers heavy at times and merging into longer outbreaks of rain across the Western Highlands. However, drier and brighter spells in the east. Windy.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Bright spells and showers on Saturday, but heavy rain pushing into the south and east later. Heavy rain and gales over the Northern Isles on Sunday. Otherwise bright with showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.